WANTING TO CONTROL.

Pro-Truman southerners are beginning to speak up in reply to recent expressions in the south against Mr. Truman's renomination, and it is interesting to note that, while there is little consistency among them, they all stoutly defend the New Deal and the Fair Deal. Judging by the opposition of southerners in congress to most of the measures which come under those heads, an opposition which may be assumed to reflect the attitude of their constituents, these pro-Truman southerners are a small minority of voters in the southern states.

In Texas the supporters of Mr. Truman are organizing to put up a fight in the precinct conventions next May with the object of controlling the state convention which will name both the delegates to the national convention and the party nominees for presidential electors. They have Governor Shivers against them, for he has declared emphatically against the renomination of Mr. Truman and has suggested an uncommitted delegation.
