AT U. S. EXPENSE?

Major opposition to the proposals contained in President Truman's inaugural address will undoubtedly center upon his "bold new program" for the improvement and growth of undeveloped areas.

What President Truman has in mind is by no means clear. Some persons say that President Roosevelt's dream of developing the parched and underproductive areas of the world has now, by Mr. Truman's adoption, become a major objective of our foreign policy.

At whose expense remains to be seen. Many think that American financial aid, both public and private, is implicit in the president's proposal. Mr. Truman used to have a lower, but he said "this should be a co-operative enterprise in which all nations should work together through the United Nations and its specialized agencies wherever practicable. It must be a world-wide effort."

FOR TRADE REVIVAL

One road to peace that many people overlook is that of trade revival. Nations able to buy the imports of food and raw materials they need and able to find foreign markets for their own surplus are less likely to pick quarrels with their neighbors. Balanced trade leads to peace and prosperity and is an incentive to the maintenance of peace. Trade brings nations closer together and leads to peace.

We have had large exports since the war, but the figures do not tell the whole story. A large proportion of our exports has been in relief and Marshall Plan shipments for which we receive no pay. We need to develop normal trade in which our imports will balance our exports.

In the last year and a half a creditable start has been made in this direction. This process can be speeded if Congress extends for three years the tariff program of reciprocal trade treaties without crippling strings.

This is one recommendation of President Truman that should have prompt and favorable action. Sam Rayburn, speaker of the house, has been extremely difficult. The Hull plan has advantage over a straight tariff slash in that it assures us of matching concessions for those which we give. In a day when many other nations have tariff walls as high as our such reciprocity is essential to reopening trade routes, to continuing and extending the program of reciprocal trade treaties.

land was the Virginia colony which already was thirteen years old and where the House of Burgesses, the first representative assembly in America, had been established in April, 1619. It was only when they found themselves outside the limits of the Virginia government that the Pilgrims drafted their famous covenant and settled at Plymouth. All honor to them for the part they played in the planting of English civilization in America. But why ignore Jamestown and Virginia? That was where English settlement of America really started, wasn't it?

Of course, that's the usual thing. Even most Southerners are convinced today that Anglo-American civilization started at Plymouth. We recently heard of a Texas school boy who, in an examination, set forth that the incident of Captain John Smith and Pocahontas occurred in Massachusetts.

The fact is that New England dominated the history writings of long ago, especially after the civil war, that their local patriotism and provincial prejudices have become the accepted traditions of America. And the New England bias has been perpetuated by national radio programs and fair to establish them permanently in the national folkways—Southern Weekly.

NOT WEST BUSINESSMAN

The fair-trades advocates are back with a new plan. For years they have been saying to make it a statutory offense to cut prices in Texas. Now they propose that a dealer shall be required to show that he is making at least 6 per cent profit, unless he can prove that his overhead is less than 6 per cent.

It is one of the legitimate concerns of the state of Texas to set minimum prices. The fact that a man makes a 6 per cent profit on the sale of a pair of pants or a pair of shoes is not a crime. It is a business matter. It is not a crime to make a profit. It is a business matter.

DEPLETED WOODLANDS

Continued depletion of America's forests at the present rate may bring about a time when timber must be imported or new substitutes found. The Forest Service warns that we are using 50 per cent more timber each year than we are growing. In addition to wasteful cutting, we are allowing preventable fires to wipe out vast acreages of forests every year.

In forest depletion, the south is in a less serious situation than some other timber areas. In the Pine Woods of the south, fast growth is stimulated by climate, abundant rainfall and a long growing season. Timber used for paper pulp, which does not need to be as old as that used for lumber, allows a more rapid turnover.

ARMY BULLDOZERS SPEED UP WORK TO SAVE HUMAN LIVES

By Associated Press.

The army said in Washington Sunday that relief operations in blitz-bombing western areas are being pressed with all possible speed and that saving human lives has become a major problem.

An army official said telephone reports from observers in areas west of Omaha, Neb., showed lack of food and fuel in the snow-bound areas is becoming a bigger threat hourly to humans.

The official said everything possible is being done to meet the prime objective—getting the roads open to get necessary food and fuel to isolated areas.

To aid in expediting relief, Assistant Army Secretary Gordon Gray and Lt. Gen. Raymond A. Wheeler, chief of engineers, left Washington by plane for first hand observation in the stricken states.

The army authorities, accompanied by George H. Field, chief of the bureau of community facilities for the Federal Works Administration, expected to offer any assistance possible in the emergency.

On the western plains, the army speeded its work of bulldozing its way through heavy snowdrifts, but admitted inability to cope with the job of attempting to feed storm-stricken cattle from the air.

"Figure it out yourself," Fifth Army headquarters in Chicago said. "In one county in Nebraska, 100,000 cattle starve. A C-47 plane can carry two tons of feed. To supply those cattle with one day's feed would require 500 flights. We just don't have enough planes or time to do the job by air. We've got to get the roads open."

The United States Weather Bureau reported that the snow blanket ranged up to 100 inches in some of the Rocky Mountain passes. The heaviest accumulation in a populated place was 54 inches at Flagstaff, Ariz.

U. S. GRANTS ISRAEL
FULL RECOGNITION
Washington, January 31.—President Truman Monday announced full recognition of Israel and Trans-Jordan.

The action, long forecast, followed official announcement of results of the first Israel election.

Last year, the United States granted conditional recognition of the provisional government of Israel as a result of the election.

Monday's action granted de jure or full recognition.

The White House issued two statements. The first said:

"On Oct. 24, 1948, the President stated that when the Jewish government was elected in Israel, it would promptly be given de jure recognition. Election for such a government was held on January 23. The votes have now been counted, and this government is hereby recognized."

GOVERNOR ASKED FOR PROTECTION AGAINST FIRES

Austin, Texas, January 31, 1949.

To Honorable Bradford H. Jeter, Governor of Texas, Austin, Texas:

I am writing in regard to the Texas Forest Fire Protection.

In thirteen counties there is approximately 1,000,000 acres of land owned by farmers and forest landowners now subject to uncontrolled wild fires.

These thirteen counties are Jasper, Newton, Harding, Liberty, Harris, Grimes, Waller, Orange, Leon, Jefferson, Madison, Houston and Chambers.

To extend forest fire protection facilities to these counties, an appropriation of $100,000 was requested for the fiscal year ending August 31, 1950, and $100,000 for the period ending August 31, 1951.

The appropriation recommended by the board of control was only $20,000. According to these figures, it is apparent that there is a discrepancy somewhere.

$100,000 is only approximately $100 per acre annually.

NOT NEST BUSINESSMAN,

The fair-trades advocates are back with a [new] [uncertain] plan. For years they have [been—saying] [uncertain] to make it a statutory offense to cut prices in Texas. Now they propose that a dealer shall be required to show that he is making at least 6 per cent profit unless he can prove that he; [overhead] [uncertain] is less than 6 per cent

It is none of the legitimate concern of the [state] [uncertain] of Texas to set minimum profit. The fact that a man makes a 6 per cent profit on the sale of

As a matter of fact, the fair-trades people are not at all interested in the welfare of people who sell goods at a low price. They simply want to stop the sale of goods at a low price. We are now in an era of high prices. It is probably the worst [position] [uncertain]

Texas had better stay out of the [conspiracy] [uncertain] to coat the consumer [margin] [uncertain]

Competition is the base for private business in [this] [uncertain] country. The way to maintain competition is to let the businessman compete. If he can compete at less than 6 per cent, that in itself is not necessarily bad competition. [1] [uncertain] is sometimes very good competition indeed. Daiias [New.] [uncertain] DEPLETED" WOODLANDS,

Continued depletion of America's [forests] [uncertain] at the present rate may bring soon a time when timber must be imported or new substitutes found

The Forest Service warns that we are using 50 per cent more timber each year than we are growing. In addition to wasteful cutting, we are allowing preventable fires to wipe out vast acreages of forests every year. In forest depletion, the south lies in [a] [uncertain] line serious situation than came [other] [uncertain] timber areas. In the Piney Woods [loss] [uncertain] the [growth,] [uncertain] fast growth is stimulated by climate, abundant [rainfall] [uncertain] and a long growing season. Timber used for paper pulp, which does not [need] [uncertain] to be as old as that used for lumber, [allowing] [uncertain] a more rapid turnover. Southern [states] [uncertain] have made some progress in forest conservation, and a number of corporations have bought up large areas for recurrent harvest- ing. [1] [uncertain]

Yet here, too, cutting has exceeded growth, especially in war periods. More needs to be done [In] [uncertain] both reforestation and fire prevention. The Far- [est] [uncertain] Service estimates that, over the whole nation, thirty billion trees need 1) to be planted on, thirty million denuded acres, East Texas can profit from a part in such reforestation. It can if the next [legislature] [uncertain] acts favorably on the forest program. It will be asked to [adopt—Dallas] [uncertain] News. [SD] [uncertain] Hay [Wheeler] [uncertain] Dies. Relatives here have been notified of the death of Ray [Wieser] [uncertain] 74, which occurred [leveled] [uncertain] at his home in St. Paul, Minn.

To aid in expediting relief, [Asst- 5] [uncertain] Army Secretary Gordon Gray and Lt. Gen. Raymond A. Wheeler, chief of engineers, left Washington by plane for [first] [uncertain] hand observation in the stricken [areas] [uncertain].

The army authorities, [accompanied] [uncertain] by George H.H. On the western plains, the army [applied it] [uncertain] work of [bulldozing] [uncertain] way through heavy [snowdrifts] [uncertain] but admitted inability to cope with the job of [attempting] [uncertain] to feed starving cattle from the air.
