THIS YEAR'S MEAT SUPPLY.

As of the early part of March, retail meat prices in the Chicago area, which are generally typical of the country as a whole, were down an average of 20 percent below last summer's peak levels. Some popular cuts were down much more—round steak, for instance, was being offered at 30 percent less than at the high point.

Supply and demand did that. A heavy supply of meat came to market, and at the same time there was some slackening in consumer buying. The meat had to be moved and lower prices were the inevitable result. As an interesting by-product of the change, one of the biggest meat packers took a substantial operating loss for 1948.

At present, there has been something of a reversal in the trend of livestock supplies and prices are expected to level out. However, no one would fear a meat shortage. Last year, the average American ate 145 pounds of meat. This year, it is estimated, he will account for 145 pounds, made up of 80 pounds of beef, 9 pounds of veal, 72 pounds of pork, and 4 pounds of lamb and mutton. A decline in available supplies of beef, veal, lamb and mutton will be made up by an increase in the amount of pork. The American dining table will continue to carry its share of the good things of life, and meat is one of them. The price we must pay, when measured against the average increase in dollar income, will be fair and reasonable.

CLASS TAX DEBATE.

The North Dakota legislature has defeated a proposal for a class tax against chain stores. A few weeks before the Idaho legislature repealed a similar tax that had been on the books since 1923. In Idaho, the tax was levied on chain stores, labor groups and other kinds of merchants opposed punitive tax treatment of the chain store. That is a good sign. The chains are an important and legitimate form of retail merchandising. They are among the best customers of agriculture and industry. They were the leaders in developing techniques of mass-distribution which have helped make possible a steadily rising standard of living for the nation. As a general rule, they are leaders in all worth while community development campaigns, charity drives, and similar activities. They know that their own future depends on the future of the communities they serve, and their policies reflect that.

Furthermore, the old fear that the growth of the chains would mean the slow death of the independent merchant has been proven unfounded. The independents have grown too, and they do the bulk of all the retail trade of the country. Instead of looking on chain competition as a death warrant, they devised ways and means of their own to meet it, and to make their stores attractive to their customers. In practically every community, chain stores and independent stores, dealing in the same character of wares, are operating side by side, both doing well.

Class taxation of any enterprise cannot be defended. The action of the North Dakota and Idaho legislatures indicates recognition of this view.

CHIEF ARLEDGE ASKS COUNCIL BUY HOSE PARKERS MUST PAY

Mayor R. M. Sims called a special meeting of the city council Thursday morning to hear Fire Chief Jay Arledge's petition for 1000 feet of new fire hose. John N. Hawsey, south western district manager of a nationally contracted double-jacket hose with a 4-ply rubber lining to cost about $1400, was present. Motion by Bob Overstreet and seconded by Buck Sullivan carried that three bids from companies be received before purchase was made. All hose is twelve years old and more.

Parking meter revenues are falling off, announced City Secretary Dudley Hoodless. Motion was made that effective May 1 money for parking must be placed in the meter, the police chief instructed not to take tickets from cars after that date.

Warrant will be issued if the second notice is not paid by motion of O. B. Thine, seconded by T. B. Craddock. A third matter was about the heavy rain caused by dry grass on vacant lots. Thine may ask the city to have grass on that vacant lot with the gummin charge placed at $2. Thine said he turned in a container with ten feet of cleared space all around the fire.

The aldermen expressed the opinion that in the interest of beauty and cleanliness as well as safety and economy, residents would be happy to abide by these regulations.
