of retailing, [incigding] [uncertain] chain and [in-}] [uncertain] dependent merchandisers, have large ty dwelt on one theme the need fer better selling for greater effort to attract and to please the consuming public.

There is nothing remarkable about [thie developmamt—it] [uncertain] is, indeed, based jon the, first principle of successful retailing. During the te and government ratio write fe ing and other controls took mach of the edge off competition. Almost any- thing could be sold to eager buyers

Then, after the war, the great buying spree went on for a couple of years, and people stood in line to bey things they needed of thought they [needed.] [uncertain]

Its different now. There has bern a drop im buying. [Consumers.] [uncertain] are more wary, and they k constant watch on prices and qualities. They shop about in search of a better buy. They expect efficient, [cou] [uncertain] salespeople, and [guod] [uncertain] service nd so merchants are placing more and more emphasis on intelligent selling, in all j Hts many, phases.

THEY MAY BE SMALL: B BUT DAMAGE BIC

College Statlon, June [22.—Thosre] [uncertain] tiny insects In your grain bin may [PP] [uncertain] be small, but they do a, [tremendo] [uncertain] ts ot lot of damage to stored grain: Thats the word from the USDA bureau of q entomology and plant quarantine, i

The first place to [atart] [uncertain] getting rid of them fe right Inside the bin itself n Dy doing a good [job'] [uncertain] of bin cleaning, a and afterward spraying with 5 per pe cent DDT before the newly harvested a grain js put in, you can go long [2] [uncertain] way toward killing out the sr Infestation. Also, [youre] [uncertain] giving the e new grain a chance to escape damage.

Dr. [Ul. G,] [uncertain] Johnston, head of [the}] [uncertain] 4 Texas A. M.
