"POORHOUSE" STATE CALLED TRUMAN GOAL

Washington, November 27.—Guy C. Gabrielson, the Republican national chairman, Sunday night accused the Truman administration of pointing the country toward "a poorhouse state."

Answering a No. 2 speech by President Truman in St. Paul, Minn., the GOP leader asserted in a prepared radio address that administration policies have led to "a serious unemployment problem" in this country.

In his St. Paul speech, Mr. Truman laid down a 12-point creed for "fair deal" supporters and attacked "reactionaries" he said were opposing his welfare program.

Gabrielson charges that recent trade orders by the president have cut the reciprocal trade agreements act renewed by the Democratic congress have resulted in "the exporting of jobs of American workers in the hope of providing jobs for workers abroad."

Asserting that the Democrats not only are spending money that will have to be repaid in taxes collected a hundred years from now, Gabrielson declared:

"If we continue under the present administration we are headed for a poorhouse state and while the Democrats are not particularly anxious to see a poorhouse state, they are not particularly anxious to see a poorhouse state."

Republicans need a positive program.

Portland, Me., November 27.—Republicans were told Saturday night their comeback depends on finding better answers to the people's security problems.

Philip H. Willis—son of the late Wendell Willis, 1940 G. O. P. presidential nominee—said the Democrats' answer "is to spend more and present, proceeded to open the polls of our total national income."

On the 14th day of November, 1949, the Commissioners' Court being in regular session, a quorum being present, proceeded to open the polls and count the votes polled for and for non-productive purposes." The Indiana state representative called that "a tremendous danger to our institutions" in an address prepared for the young Republicans of Maine.

But, he said, the Democrats' solution nonetheless is a "poorhouse" one that the G. O. P. must meet with a sounder, equally positive program.

Willis declared "it behooves the Republicans to find a 'middle way' between the socialized welfare state and control by entrenched wealth."

"We are gradually being socialized through the income tax," Willis said. "The worst trouble with the Democrats' solution is that it is killing the incentive which sparked American into making these United States the world's greatest work shop."

"The political issue in America is not concerned with the question as to whether we should socialize the means of production and distribution," said Willis. "The domestic issue in America is concerned with the administration of the social services and public projects."

"It is in that field that there is a tremendous opportunity for the Republican party to pioneer with new ideas. The Democrats are so completely committed to their present policy that they have no room to experiment."

Bottles will soon be placed in stores all over town to hold contributions to the Big Brother movement for underprivileged families' Christmas stockings. C. V. Hanning is in charge of the Lions' Club committee in charge of this underprivileged Christmas project.
