FLOOD PROBLEMS IN LIONS CLUB TALKS BY VISITING BRASS

Mid-Texas Valley Association of Lions was guests at the Tuesday meeting of the Crockett Lions Club, presided over by Harvey Bayne, president. Lion Joe Bailey Humphreys presented Buddy Wakefield of Madisonville, who introduced the visitors. Mr. Wakefield began by paying tribute to the club, who is vice-president of the association from this country. William Forest Jr. of Madisonville, vice president also of the association, William Forest Sr. of Madisonville, Forest Park of Fort Worth, Congressman Tom Pickett, Col. Hendrick, Col. R. L. Jewett of Washington, D. C., and Col. Ellsworth Davis, district engineer from the Galveston office, were introduced. Mr. Knox and

Mr. Arnold from Trinity and Mrs. Wood from Woodlake were other visitors. The visiting colonels were complete as to uniforms and brass.

Col. Ellsworth used a wall-sized map of the Trinity river and its basin and tributaries with which to illustrate his talk on the problem now facing the middle region of the valley, in which are situated the counties represented at Tuesday's luncheon: namely, Houston, Trinity, Tyler and Madison.

Three large creeks empty their waters into the Trinity just north of Crockett about 75 miles; when the rains are heavy, flooded farms and pastures result. These creeks, Cedar, Chambers and Richland, are to be controlled with proper dams, according to the project which this association is working on.

The association is patterning their dam project after that already in the development stage above Dallas and Fort Worth on the creeks of Benbow, Grapevine and Garza. The project will be presented to the December, 1950, congress; if it approves, it will vote money at the following 1951 session.
