STOP, LOOK AND

READ [MERCHANTS] [uncertain] GREETINGS.

An you settle down to read the Crockett, [Courter] [uncertain] this week, weof, the [Crockett" Courler] [uncertain] force, urge you to give very special attention to the Christmas [Greetings"] [uncertain] from the merchants of Crockett. These greetings are oho of their methods of saying Merry Christmas to you," so count it as an individual holiday greeting from them, for as the merchants went [ubout] [uncertain] the business of selecting these greetings, they very carefully selected the thoughts upon them with you in mind. If, in the mood of the season, they thought of you" to wish you an Merry Christmas" in such a manner, please read them and we suggest that you make it a part of your conversation next week to say something to them, when you [kee] [uncertain] them, about their thoughtful and attractive greetings, We feel sure that they would like to know.

At the present time there are over a hundred greetings" and before the paper goes to press there may be considerably more.

The office force, Mr. W. W. Aiken, editor; Brewer Bennett, general assistant, T. J. Welch, Jinotype and presses, and Mrs. Hattie Belle Milburn, reporting and advertising, have watched with a great deal of interest as the number of Christmas greetings from the merchants have increased steadily and each has enjoyed working on this special Christmas issue of the Crockett Courier, and have cooperated wholeheartedly to bring this biggest issue of the year to you on December 21. We hope that you will like it so, from the office force, we ga MERRY CHRISTMAS TO O-U, TOO," and well see you next year!

TALL RED HILLS, GREEN PINES AND MAGNO

Again taking our afternoon ride Sunday, we drove north to Grapeland and took the west farm-to-market paved road out of there. We had" been over that road, with its well-kept farm places, before. So we turned at the end of the pavement, retraced) our steps to Grapeland and turned northwest on the Rock Hill commun-' [ity] [uncertain] pavement. This farm-to-market road penetrates the Grapeland oil field and crosses the tall hills of the Rock Hill community. When we went down some of those steep hills, we wondered if we would get back up them, but we did at a forty-mile pace. The green pines and magnolias help the view. There are some new houses" and, on the whole, it is a drive worth taking.

We had heard of a good farm-to-market road extending southwest from Elkhart and ending in the Isaac Parker community, nine miles southwest of Elkhart. The Parker [coramunity] [uncertain] is one of the oldest in Houston or Anderson counties, Anderson having been taken off of the north end of Houston. Driving to Elkhart, we turned southwest and at about seven or eight miles passed through what we guessed was a part of the Navarro Crossing oil field, of which the Rock Hill field [mightalso] [uncertain] be called a part. A few miles on, we came to [Parkers"] [uncertain] Store, near which stands the old farm house and home of Isaac Parker, who took a prominent part in the early history of Houston and Anderson counties. This is a very pretty road, lined with green pines and magnolias, and no doubt many dogwood blossom will enhance its beauty duping the dogwood season, a [ite] [uncertain]
