We are chasing a mirage of easy money in the form of deficit dollars flowing through our expanding federal program which are undermining the will of individuals, neglecting the production of agriculture and labor, controlling the practices of business, curtailing the sovereignty of the states, and reducing the self-determination and privileges so traditional in our local government.

If this country is to have a "new birth of freedom," it will not come through committee and council, nor will it develop by resolution or proclamation. It will start quietly across the land in the hearts of men and women, and it will grow like a national conviction that what others have been willing to die for may be worth some effort to preserve.

"It is curious and sad the way much of the intellectual climate of this country has changed. Once we regarded like lions for liberty; now, we bleed like sheep for security. The solution of America's problem is not in terms of big government, but it is in the men over whom nobody stands in control but God."—Dr. Norman Vincent Peale.

Forest conservation means the use of the forest for the greatest good of the greatest number of people for the longest time. It does not imply stopping the harvesting of timber nor does it recognize unnecessary waste.

We need fire protection to prevent injury to and destruction of our remaining stands of merchantable and second-growth timber. Fire protection also is essential to the reforestation of non-agricultural cut-over land.

The first pencil factory in the United States was established in 1861. About 1,000,000 pencils are manufactured from American wood every year, representing a total value of approximately $50,000,000.

The perfect man doesn't drink or smoke or swear; doesn't borrow from his friends and doesn't steal; doesn't make love to all the girls and overruns the men. In fact, the perfect man doesn't exist.

People in the south use much of the lumber produced in the region. Consumption of lumber in different states varies from 20 to 60 per cent of the volume produced.

The saplings of today are the pole timber and sawlogs of tomorrow. Fire kills saplings and injures timber. If we are to have timber for future needs, our young trees must be protected.

Judge Lindsay said he had never tried gin and gingivitis, but he had tried several who had.

ASSASSINATION ATTEMPT.

The nation is shocked by the action of two Puerto Rican gunmen who made a mad dash to attempt to invade the White House. It will be tremendously relieved that the assassin failed, a feeling mingled with regret because of the heavy sacrifices heaped by the brave men who thwarted the failed entry into the president's mansion.

Normal and sane persons will find it impossible to understand the motives which actuated the pair. They were Puerto Rican nationalists, members of an island movement deeply related with the state of anti-independence. In front of Blair House came on the heels of an uprising in the island.

There are a people that have been fitted much under the protection of the United States. The peninsula was freed from Spanish rule by the action of the century. A greater degree of autonomy had been given to the natives from year to year. They have been the recipients of bounty from this country constantly.

The crowding and poverty from which they suffer has not been due to any fault on the part of this country. Overpopulation and a one-crop economy have handicapped the island. Only a little over a year ago Puerto Rico was a state of anti-independence. The nationalists, or extreme nationalists, were not satisfied. They wanted complete independence. They were not willing to wait for the economic improvement which seemed indicated under the policies of Governor Louis Munoz Marin. Earlier in the week the nationalists first on the governor's office at San Juan and the national guard of Puerto Rico had to be employed to quell disturbances set off by the nationalists in the interior.—Houston Chronicle.

CHANGES IN HUNTING.

Those who used to go out and hunt ducks or deer where they pleased are running into more posted farms and ranches. Writing in Sports Field, Louis Bromfield notes that free public hunting is on the decline and soon may disappear. But this does not mean that there will be less game or less hunting. It merely means that our hunting is shifting to the European pattern. Landowners will cultivate game by providing cover and food and will charge fees to hunters. The latter may fill their bags more easily with low-flying trout.

To the buffalo hunters and deer hunters of twenty-five years ago, this kind of hunting is a new thing. Ranchmen with pedigreed cattle cannot afford to have irresponsible persons hunting on their ranges. They and others can provide game and, in many cases, fish for hunters and anglers willing to pay small fees and to be responsible for any damage they do. The result of this change, as in Europe, should be to increase the supply of game and to make hunting available to more sportsmen.—Dallas News.

GENUINE CHARITY.

There is a tendency today to use charity in a way that rubs it off our hearts and leaves only a cold and inhuman word.

Many times an organization will be moved to perform an act of charity only to gain publicity and the material benefits which naturally follow such publicity. Many organizations "sell" something in order that they may obtain money which, in turn, they will disburse to various charities. These acts may be commendable, but they do not carry the true spirit of charity.

Keep the young trees green. They are our future supply of lumber, pulpwood, railroad ties, poles and pilings, and fence posts. Don't burn the woods.

Firebreaks hold forest fires in check as dikes hold back the floods. A firebreak is a sort of fence that attacks forest fires.

Texas is the land of plenty, with plenty of land.

PRINCIPLE FIRST.

Governor Driscoll of New Jersey, who beat the Democratic Hague machine in his state with a liberal political gospel, added by the corrupt trick of the Hughesites, went out to California and told the young Republican club that America must have integrity in government restored.

We hope that doesn't become a worn-out phrase, because anybody with ears open and minds undeluged by prejudice knows that men of principle above-party, of ideals above expediency, of integrity above selfish gain must somehow sweep the cobwebs of corruption out of the way and take over.

It will be hard. A nation which fifty years ago would have rebelled at political practices rampant today, now condones them. Worse, it expects them. The Federal government is expected to "buy" the vote. It is expected to connive with labor to milk the country dry.

The governor might have added that many Republicans play it the same way. There are bankers and doctors and lawyers and others who run government in business, socialized medicine and socialized law—only to relax their convictions a bit when they, personally, can benefit.

Will White, around 1866 when Tom Reed was contesting with McKinley for the nomination, said "the country needs a man with a good heart as well as a head." Fifty years later it needs, too, a man with an incorruptible soul.—Dallas News.

EDITORIAL BY GOSSETT.

Last week Rep. Gossett of Wichita Falls was in Dallas. The address he made before the Salesmanship Club was covered by The News. But maybe you missed it. In any case, Mr. Gossett had some highly quotable words in what he said:

"In its first 122 years, this country spent 167 billion dollars" (on government). "In the four years from 1946 to 1950, it spent 177 billion dollars. We create a temporary bureau and it becomes permanent. A small one becomes a large one. Enough of this will destroy the government."

"There is a great feeling in this country that the government owes everybody. Yet the impetus for all freedom is the struggle against fear and want. The only security is in jail or the grave."

"Under our present political machinery, a man feels futile and helpless. Under the electoral system, we give the entire electoral vote to a state the candidate receiving the majority of the votes. This has led to political control by powerful minority

"RUBBISH!" SAYS WINSTON CHURCHILL

New York, November 2. Winston Churchill, in the latest chapter of his memoirs, politely says Elliott Roosevelt would be a "rubbish" if he were to publish "rubbish" about the Canadian conference in 1945.

On several points, the former prime minister disputes Elliott Roosevelt's version of the historic meeting between Churchill and President Roosevelt. Elliott attended the meeting with his father and wrote about it later in his book "As I Saw It."

In the installment of his own story, Churchill points out that he was anxious to get on with the war and to attend the conference. He says: "It is very odd to see the account which the president's son, Elliott Roosevelt, gives of this in the book which he has written to his father."

"He seems to suggest that the president suspected me of trying to stop the war by getting on with the war. The Gaulle coming, and objecting to his being brought there, whereas I was putting the utmost pressure possible to get him to come. This cub-le has had wide and long currency." Expanding his sentiments about De Gaulle at the time, Churchill adds: "I know he was a friend of King-Edwin. But I always recognized in him the spirit and conception which, across the pages of history, the word 'Princes' would ever proclaim. I understood and admired, while I respected, his arrogant demeanor."

"There he was, a refugee, an exile from his country under persecution of death, in a position entirely dependent upon the good will of the British government and the United States."

North America, which contains about one-twelfth of the world's population, was about one-half of all the timber consumed in the world.

We hope that [doesnt] [uncertain] become a worn-out phrase, because anybody with cara open and minds uncluttered by prejudice knows that men of prin- ciple-above-party, of ideals above ex- [pedience,] [uncertain] of integrity above selfish gain must" somehow sweep the cob- webs of corruption out of the way and take over.

It will be hard. A nation which fifty years ago would have rebelled at political practices rampant today, now condones them. Worse, it expects them. Dallas News. EDITORIAL BY [GOSSETT."] [uncertain]

Last week Rep. Gossett of Wichita Falls was in Dallas. The address he made before the Salesmanship Club was covered by The News. But maybe you missed it, In any case, Mr. Gossett had some highly quotable quotes in what he said:

In its first 152 years, this [country!~] [uncertain] spent 167 billion dollars" [(on] [uncertain] government.) In the four years from [1946]] [uncertain] to 1949, it spent 177 billion dollars. We create a temporary bureau and it becomes permanent. A small one becomes a large one. Enough of this will destroy the government.

There is a great feeling in this country that the government owes everybody. Yet the impetus for all freedom is the struggle against fear and want. The only security is in jail or the grave.

Under our present political machinery, a man feels futile and helpless. Under the electoral system, we give the entire electoral vote a state to the candidate receiving the majority of the votes. This has led to po- [litical,] [uncertain] control by powerful minority r: COVERS Custom Trim Shop
