RAILROADS AND THE PUBLIC WELFARE

By Thomas L. Dickinson, President Equitable Life Assurance Society.

The Korean incident again drew the people of this country to a consideration of many problems affecting their future welfare. One of the problems to which more consideration has been given during the past few months than during the past few years is domestic transportation, and especially by railroad transportation.

Korea created a demand for actual and prospective railroad transportation which has already resulted in orders placed by our railroads for $100,000,000 of diesel engines and $200,000,000 of freight cars. This is only a fraction of what our railroads need if they are to provide speedy, safe and economical service whether we are in an atmosphere of defense preparation or of actual war.

Now that the pressure of the Korean affair has been somewhat relieved by the military alertness and tactics of General MacArthur, we have probably the time, and let's hope the good sense, to give thorough and serious consideration to our transportation problems and their relation to our public welfare.

It is generally admitted that the American railroads did a splendid job during World War II. Due to the war burden of passenger and freight traffic and to shortages of labor and materials, the railroads came out of the war somewhat the worse for their wear and tear. It has been estimated that deferred maintenance on our railroads at the end of 1945 had been the postponed repair and replacement amounted in dollar value to $300 millions. Therefore, the roads began the post war period needing to make up for what had not been done during the war, to say nothing of improvements and betterments in plant and equipment which their own experience and industrial progress made desirable.

If the railroads are to give the service passengers and shippers demand, they must not only have equipment which will provide and endure speed, but they must have methods and signal systems which will provide safety with speed. That means better rails and ballast, road-bed drainage, elimination of curves, or banking of curves where they cannot be eliminated.

Not Blaming Them.

President Truman and General Douglas MacArthur, shaking hands at Wake Island Sunday, just prior to their historic conference, when Korean and other Asiatic questions were discussed, were looking at the photographer instead of at each other. If so, and as husbands go he went.

Our modern girls dress to kill and cook the same way.

He was a good man, as husbands go, and as husbands go he went.

"Not Much Difference."

Dallas, Oct. 12.—A great-grandmother from Shreveport, who fiddles left handed and says there's not much difference in husband-calling and log-calling, walked off with top honors in two contests at the Texas State Fair.

Mrs. Minnie E. Cope, "only 73 past," won the wonga's division of the fair's old fiddlers' contest Wednesday. She also won the husband-calling contest.

In the calling contest she said she just imagined her husband is an hour late for supper and "I have just spied him talking to a pretty woman neighbor. Then I'm in a mood for good husband-calling in a kind of panther mood."
