Up to the time that North Korea [cJeent] [uncertain] her troops pour across the 38th parallel, we had been thinking in terms of the big intercontinental war. This, if it came, was to be war [Jon] [uncertain] an unprecedented cease and of an [unprecedented] [uncertain] type. It was to be a war of amazing machines which would wreak [denth] [uncertain] and destruction on a huge scale and at vast [distances,] [uncertain] A bomb would be pushed, and an [atom] [uncertain] bomb or a guided [missile] [uncertain] would [be] [uncertain] on its way toward the target. It is in the most difficult and dismal sort of war imaginable. CRUSHING DEFEAT FOR [FRUMAN, (] [uncertain]

The senate gave a body blow Wednesday [uncertain] to the evident belief of [thel«] [uncertain] president that he could use his patronage powers in dictatorial fashion to reward his friends and punish his enemies. By rejecting in one day four nominations made by Mr. Truman, the senate served notice that the [injun] [uncertain] that presidential appointments are to be made with the advice and consent of [thé] [uncertain] senate" means just [vhat] [uncertain] it said.

All four cases, two involving [fedral] [uncertain] judges and two administrative costs, involved the traditional, but written, rule that nominees of the T [white] [uncertain] house must not be personally [bnoxious"] [uncertain] to the senator from the [ame] [uncertain] state.

The crushing nature of the defeat [uffered] [uncertain] by Mr. Truman was [shown] [uncertain] him the fact that in only one instance!

as a roll call demanded. The senate as [oted] [uncertain] 59 to 14 against the nomination of Martin A. Hutchinson, of Virginia, a member of the Federal Trade Commission. The nominations of M. Neil Andrews to the federal bench in Georgia, of [arrol] [uncertain] O. Switzer to the federal bench low and of former Representative Frank Hook of Michigan to the Motor Claims Commission were turned down. The president found no defenders for his nominees on the floor of the senate. The silence can be traced to the fact that senators are jealous of [eir] [uncertain] place in the scheme of federal [tronage.] [uncertain]

[1]) [uncertain] No president in recent history has had as much difficulty in obtaining [Llconfirmation] [uncertain] of his nominees as Mr. Truman. He [haa] [uncertain] been nipped down. Clin his efforts do reward his cronies," [Lan] [uncertain] was the case when Edwin

He has now been warned that he [munt] [uncertain] work with the [rennators] [uncertain] and not [npn] [uncertain] them. The greatest boon [whileh] [uncertain] could come to the nation from [thone] [uncertain] setbacks [auf.] [uncertain] feed him by Mr. Truman would be to have him nugget some men for public office whose fitness could not be questioned. That would not only be novel, [J] [uncertain] but of benefit to the United States,

THINGS TO GUARD AGAINST.

Two contingencies against which the citizens of the United States need to be [yuarded] [uncertain] at the present time are both deeply involved with the current legislative drive in Washington to put the nation in the state of mobilization which world events require,

One is to make certain that what!

is being done is designed to meet pres-

[ent] [uncertain] day requirements and not based entirely upon the situation as it was nearly 10 years ago at the time of

Pearl Harbor,

The other is not to open the gates for the planners who are eager to seize the [exting] [uncertain] emergency to further their particular administrative experiments,

There is evidence that a great deal of the thinking, both in the executive departments and in congress is, [att CN FEE RNR WAMU] [uncertain] the [ord] [uncertain] of what was done during the early days of World War II. There is a vast difference between the past and the present, especially in the matter of technology. The nation's industrial machine is ready. Anything short of a global war will require only a fraction of our ability to produce for our armed forces. We have supplies and equipment at hand. We do not have to first plan for them and then produce them as was the case in 1941,

But more particularly, congress should not be panicked into accepting proposals and curbs which are not sound of themselves. The [preseht emergency] [uncertain] does not call for mistakes nor does it warrant foisting upon the people laws not necessary to mobilization that would be resisted and defeated in [timeeof] [uncertain] peace.

Specifically on such proposal is that of Senator Joseph O'Mahoney of Wyoming for an immediate excess profits tax. There is even more reason to go low on this suggestion than President [frumans] [uncertain] cynical suggestion that [nothng] [uncertain] of that sort should be done until after.
