p.m. T have appointed you co-chairman of the reception committee.

For your information, the reception committee will be primarily interest- od in local attendance of the member- ship, honorary directors and the citi- [zenship] [uncertain] of your local area. The an- [nual] [uncertain] convention is open to the public however, we [ure] [uncertain] especially concerned with extending a personal invitation to the membership of the council and the personnel of the safety divisions of the various corporations and industrial companies, and as the Texas

Safety Council has devoted a large part of their efforts towards safety in the schools, we want to make a special effort to bring the superintendents, principals and teachers of the schools to this convention.

We can make this convention an outstanding, successful affair if you will personally arrange to have five persons attend the morning and afternoon session,

Sincerely,

Pierce P. Brooks, President;

Texas Safety Council.

TEXAS RURAL [ELECTRIFICATION] [uncertain] INCREASING

In 1935 only 2 per cent. of rural homes in Texas had electricity, while today 81 per cent of Texas farms and ranches put electricity to more than [300°] [uncertain] different uses. Texas" 77 rural electric co-ops now serve more than 256,000 rural homes [Sover] [uncertain] 104,000 miles" of wire, enough to reach four times around the world,

Texas has been a leader in the rural electrification program from the start. The first rural power lines in the country built with money borrowed from the government were energized by the Bartlett Electric Cooperative at Bartlett, Texas, in March, 1936.

Rural Rower lines spread rather slowly over the state for the first few [Lyears._REA-provided-nothing"] [uncertain] except technical advice, guidance and loans to be paid back with interest. Rural people talked it over, organized co-ops and built more and [moro—power] [uncertain] Hnes as it became apparent that the co-ops were financially practical and would be able to pay back their loans to REA,

ANNOUNCES

4. 8. Holleman of Livingston, Dis- trick Attorney of the 9th Judicial Dis- [trict,] [uncertain] has entered the race for Con- [greasman] [uncertain] from the 7th Congressional [District] [uncertain] and is planning a vigorous Jeampnign throughout the district,

[Holloman,] [uncertain] former County Attorney Jund twice [cleeted] [uncertain] to the [District] [uncertain] At- [torneys] [uncertain] office of the Conroe District, expressed grave concern over Con- guess" neglect of the G. [IL] [uncertain] program to guarantee the benefits

[80] [uncertain] richly deserved-by-alt-o

In a prepared statement issued from his headquarters in Livingston, [Holleman] [uncertain] was critical of the Congress" long delay in accepting the peoples request for economy in our Government. He said in part: Congress must realize that with the national debt of 263 billion dollars, wise [spanding] [uncertain] is a must in order to relieve.the long suffering of the tax payers and to provide for the national defense."

Holleman was critical of the Agricultural Program in so far as its benefits to cotton farmers and cattlemen are concerned. He pledged himself to the support of a program that would insure sufficient cotton acreage and beef production to meet the demands of a possible crisis,

He stated-thatthe day had long since passed when there was any semblance,of the need for Government interference with private business and [advocateda] [uncertain] return tote day of nice enterprise" and [individual—initiative; thé] [uncertain] competitive era, which bred ambition and is the very spirit" of the American way of life."

Hollemans platform, in full, detail this strong interest in soil conservation, protection of our forests, adequate flood control and his desire to promote a more adequate old age assistance program.

He pointed to the tidelands [issu] [uncertain] as a further invasion of our sovereign rights, and urged a return to demo- [Lerati@] [uncertain] Ideals in support of state rights as guaranteed by the Constitution.

Holleman was high in his praise of the leadership in both: Management

Both Management and [Laborhave] [uncertain] learned that legislation is not the full answer to the problems that have come from our industrial development and the future will uphold the proposition that, given the proper safeguards, intelligent leadership can solve these difficult problems. [I] [uncertain] shall always seek and welcome the council of such leadership," [Holleman,] [uncertain] a seventeen times [décorated] [uncertain] combat veteran of the invasion of Europe, entered the service as a private in 1941 and became a liaison pilot with the 29th Infantry Division under General Patton. He was with the American troops at the meeting with the Russian forces on the Elbe River, and is strong in his praise of our strengthening bi-partisan foreign policy and advocated a continuation of the recent forceful stand assumed by the State Department with reference to Russia.
