[PINEY] [uncertain] WOODS NEGRO SCHOOL AIDED BY

The only Negro in his class, at the University of Iowa, Laurcice

Jones was a favorite of faculty and students because of his musical and TI dramatic talent, his scholastic ability fl and his sterling character. When ho was graduated in 1907, the white owner of the hotel where he [pid] [uncertain] worked nt night was ready sot him up in business. [Fathers] [uncertain] of wealthy [clasamates] [uncertain] offered him posi- [tions.] [uncertain] One wanted fo finance a dra- [matic] [uncertain] and musical [carcer] [uncertain] for him.

He went to the deep South, where the had never been before, and worked ag an farm hand, a cattle herder, a porter. In the heart of the piney woods, 26 miles south of Jackson, he [fourld] [uncertain] hundreds of blacks who share- dropped cotton, watched over a few razorback hogs, drank corn liquor hot from the still. They were 80 per cent illiterate.

As the school grew, another build ing was needed. Jones approached a wealthy white mill owner, who lis- tend to his story and said: Ive al- [Ways] [uncertain] claimed it was plumb silly to [tiy" toeducate] [uncertain] these Negroes, But, young man, [youve] [uncertain] got a practical Jidea.
