organized to make water wetter. It is said that water is not wet enough, causing it to evaporate too quickly and resulting in its-failure to last through all the drouths and permit- ting water holes to dry up too soon. [Friend] [uncertain] Milldew says that some of the water holes out his way are so dry that the fish have become demoralized and are almost ready to vote wat [Our] [uncertain] friend-says that people" make ali mistake in putting dry ice in their fish ponds,- as the fish want-more water and wetter water. He thinks [ythis-newly—organized] [uncertain] company will do well with this new industry, as he has never-seen-any-water-tov wet, but has frequently seen it evaporate, [runder] [uncertain] proper stimulation,
