When, Warden?

The El Paso Times carried this AP dispatch from Los Cruces, N. M.: "Jerry G. Waltrip of Buford was fine $150 and sentenced to 45 days in jail on pleading guilty to shooting at a horse he thought was a deer. It's not that Justice of the Peace M. H. Herrera, who imposed the stiff sentence, thinks so much of horses—but this one was ridden by Richard Aligard, a state game warden."

Man Loves a Friend.

The little old man visiting in the combination filling station and store at Perrin eagerly told the stranger where the road turned off Highway 241 toward Possum Kingdom. Then he said: "If you don't mind, I'd like to ride down to where it turns off."

In the car, the little old man's face became sad, his voice sadder.

"Just been down there checking on one of my fox hounds," he began.

"Got hit by a car but managed to drag himself off the highway. No help came, though, and that poor dog just laid there three and a half days dying, and it a rainin' and cold every day, and died."

Nothing is as disastrous as a fire, unless it is a tornado; and the hearts of Crockett people are deeply in sympathy with these people who have suffered the loss of homes in the county this week by both tornado and fire.
