THIS LAND WE LOVE,
TOWN WE LOVE, LET'S
THINK ON THIS

By Hattie Bille Milburn.

As the chamber of commerce banquet approaches and we will obtain new perspectives and look to new horizons in plans... and as the time for the city election draws near... and as our clubs make plans for another year, let's think of our town and county, and do a bit of THINKING as to what is expected of us as citizens. What is our part?

We do not know the author of the selection that we quote here and that goes like this: "Spanning the North American continent from ocean to ocean lies this land which we love. Scattered over its broad, sheltering bosom, tilting the soil on its fertile slopes, dwelling in hamlets and in villages; and intermingling in the rush and hurry of its city life, is a people of which you and I are a part."

We have loved that selection. It invokes a bit of inspiration, imagination and a challenge. For instance, let's put it this way. Let's say "Scattered over the broad, sheltered bosom of the good old United States lies a little piece of land which we love and of which you and I are a part."

This land we might point out this particular spot on the map is a little section in the big state of Texas called "Crockett" and "Houston county."

Here people "till the soil on its fertile farms," people "live in communities (not "hamlets" these days) and in villages, and they intermingle in the rush and hurry of its "town" life.

These are the people of which you and I are a part!

As we go about our "daily task" of gathering news and information, we quite often "tumble" into such phrases as "what they ought to do" or "that's the city officials and they won't do anything you ask them to do" or "that club is trying to run everything," or "the chamber of commerce, what are they up to now?"

Let's take the city. In James J. Metcalfe's "Portrait" he speaks of: "The city is a living thing... Composed of all our lives... And taxes and the bellows are... The things on which it thrives... It has to have its gas mains and... The lamps to light the way... The public schools and telephone... For what we want to pay... There must be water in the sinks... And hydrants on the streets... Good firemen and capable... Policemen on their beats... The garbage has to be removed... And sewers must be there... While each improvement now and then... Requires some repair... The city asks for many things... But most of all it needs... The contributions great and small... Of OUR unselfish deeds."

What is our part? Candidates who fill the places as city officials should be a matter of deep concern to all tax paying citizens Tuesday, April 15. Let's take the Chamber of Commerce. James J. Metcalfe again expresses our sentiments, too, with "It is that group of citizens... Who locally unite... To make their city or their town... A more inviting place... Who publicize its benefits... To firms and industries... Especially of taxes low... And cheap utilities... To swell its population... And help each civic enterprise... To grow and force ahead... The chamber welcome visitors... And leads the big parade... To build the town and make secure... The freedom of its trade... It is the wheel of progress great... In culture, work and play... With strength and courage to defend... The democratic way."

WHAT IS OUR PART? Let's take Civic Clubs. They, too, have planned programs to forge ahead in building toward a better town and community... In culture, work and play... always "with strength and courage to defend... the democratic way."

What is our part? While we are "talking," let's think of the church. What is our part? From between the Book Ends we found this:

"It takes big men to deal with little towns And not themselves grow smaller year by year;

Who know they bear within them some great lack Of vigor to attack or yet hit back. Yet one who truly knows his town will find Its people not more cruel than they're kind And He'll see the shining goodness... all the care They give the sick or needy neighbor there.

"But he who does not truly know will see Only the smallness and the nobility. And slowly with the years he will become The thing he sees—its easiness and its sum!"

What is our part... in making this town and county a better place in which to live? There's a challenge for all of us to consider in the following:

—Your Town and You.

If you want to live in the kind of a town That's the kind of a town you like, You needn't slip your clothes in a grip And start on a long, long hike. You'll find elsewhere what you left behind.

For there's nothing that's really new; It's a knock at yourself when you say, "I knock your town."

Real towns aren't made by men afraid Let somebody else get ahead. When everyone works and nobody shirks You can raise a town from the dead. And if while you make your personal stake Your neighbor can make one too, Your town will be what you want to see. It isn't your town—it's yours!

SINKING
FEELING...with my new
Electric Dishwasher
I'm a guest at my own party!

I love my friends... I love to have them over for dinner... But washing those stacks of dirty dishes used to give me that sinking feeling! That's all over now! With my efficient new electric dishwasher... I merely pop in the dishes... and the detergent... and turn the switch. My dishes are thoroughly washed and rinsed... then dried... all automatically. It's twice the fun to have friends in now... and my dishwasher is a beauty treatment for my hands, too! See the automatic electric dishwashers at stores of Electric Dishwashers.
