EXTENSION IN MADISON IS RECORDED

The Texas Co. failed to find oil in the spot expected, but brought in a producer anyway.

Texas's 100 on a 68-acre W. M. Forrest lease under Fort Trinidad Field in Madison county did not turn up oil in a formation known as the Georgetown lime at 8245 feet. But, a completion was made in a slightly shallower section called the Buda lime.

Flow was 60 barrels daily through a medium choke. Producing depth is 9,066-72 feet.

This is the sixth well for the Fort Trinidad field, which lies in both Houston and Madison counties.

The Texas completion represents a northeasterly extension of more than 2,200 feet.

But the well is the only one producing from the Buda lime formation. Texas Co.'s W. M. Forrest was originally completed as a producer from that section, but was reworked and brought in from the Georgetown lime after Woodbury Petroleum Co. and Moran Corp. discovered that reservoir with the 1 W. T. Bruton in January of last year.—Houston Post.
