THE FOSTERS PAINT THE OLD HOME PLACE

H. B. Milburn, Reporting.

"Well, sakes-alive! Am I seeing things, or only dreaming them? The Fosters have at last gone and painted that rambling old house. I've lived here for some sixty years, and for forty years I've been seeing them. The house has been the scene of many happy and brilliant social affairs in this city for some four generations. Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Foster are no longer there, but their indefatigable spirit of happiness, and for entertainment and good fellowship among friends, lives on among many today. The house, those who 'carry out' in the home, are restoring the old home place as was originally, back in the early 1900 period of the house.

The Foster home should by all rights be called the 'House of Hospitality,' since it has certainly been an inn for Crockett in giving a much pleasure to both young and old as probably any other place in town.

Mrs. A. S. Lee, who always had Sunday night suppers in this home, said of Mr. and Mrs. Foster: 'Mrs. Foster certainly lived up to her old belief when she said, 'It takes a heap of living to make a home.' Both she and Mr. Foster loved people, and never tired of having the house full of guests and laughter throughout the year. Mrs. Foster in giving a much pleasure to both young and old as probably any other place in town.

Some one asked Mr. Foster once why he wouldn't sell off the large corner lot on the southeast side which is a part of the huge front lawn, and Mr. Foster is reported to have replied, 'I want a place for my children and their friends to run and play and, besides, I don't want any one to knock the south breeze off of me.' 'At one time,' continued Miss Marion Foster, 'this lot made the only basketball court for the school, and children used to come here after school to play and to get their hands either in the large barrel of pickles mother had prepared, or scoop over the top of the large barrel of pickles mother had prepared, and running always kept in the upper hall for their growing appetites. The yard was always full of laughter, happy children at play.'

Miss Marion continued: 'The house is a 1900 period house, very typical of the time and age. It is being restored to its original look, although the once grey paint on the house and the red trim is giving to white paint and the red trim finish.

'At the time my father remodeled the house, or rather back in the 1900 period, my father was also in the vehicle business and known from Texas to the Gulf as 'John R. Foster, the buggy man.' In laying his plans for remodeling his home into a two-story 16-room house, with large verandas, he thus provided for his large growing family's needs, and his 'buggy house' was just a stone's throw from his home. In fact, it is now known as a business address on Sixth street, while his home faced east on the residential avenue on which was originally known as Church street.

'The original sight on the "Old San Antonio Road," (it is quite interesting to note that this is one place where it takes something larger than a stocking to hold Christmas gifts—the Foster children still use "pillowcases" for stockings).

Marion continued: 'At Christmas time and the holiday season in general my mother's and father's home was one of the "show places" of the town, taking on a most spectacular fairland with Santa Claus regally lit up in the chimney and his eight reindeer nervously jerking his slight and prancing on the lawn in tune with the many familiar Christmas hymns from an old-fashioned nickelodeon which could be heard from blocks around. Open house was held for all. For miles around parents brought their children to "Santa Claus Land."

CROCKETT COURIER: JULY 23, 1953

As Ford Motor Company moves into its second half-century, Henry Ford II, standing, the company's president since 1943, and his brothers, Benson, left, vice president and general manager of the Lincoln-Mercury Division, and William Clay, who manages Special Product Operations, carry on traditions of automotive progress handed down by Henry and Edsel Ford.

Not only many members of our earlier day citizens will recall the long-remembered hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Foster in the Foster home, but many of their friends of within the past ten years will recall their gracious hospitality. Mr. and Mrs. Foster were ever on hand to greet all comers and usher them inside where some small token could be handed each child from the big pine tree which was gaily trimmed and lit in the front porch.

Marion had seemingly been doing all the 'talking' but while we 'listened' we felt that the Foster girls which a host of people in Crockett think of, only as 'Miss Alice, Miss Thelma, Miss Allene and Miss Margaret' were in on this bit of conversation, 'in spirit' anyway.

But back to Christmas at the Fosters, and especially that Christmas tree, all jokes aside, the boys of the family, those who were delegated to go and get the Christmas tree, had to 'take down' the front door, every Christmas, to get the tree inside the parlor.

Among the many looked forward to planned festivities in keeping with the season was the annual dinner and Christmas tree party held a few days after Christmas by Mrs. Foster honoring the famous H. T. Club of which she was always 'president.'

In this same parlor today is still to be found the 'old time music box,' a gift of the Crockett Courier editor, W. W. Allen, which still can be heard all over the house as it plays clearly and loudly its favorite, 'Gone With the Wind' (made in a dish pan as that time of day when 'dancing was done a great deal in the home,' and enjoyed to the fullest).

There are very few who, like the editor (and the reporter) remember and recall with a growing appetite, the regular Sunday noon of 'Foster Soup' (made in a dish pan as that time of day when 'dancing was done a great deal in the home,' and enjoyed to the fullest).

Those were grand days, and we had grand fun, with Marion Tuesday and recalling the many pleasures in this 'palace' of a 'Home, Sweet Home.'

FOSTERS PAINT THE OLD HOME PLACE

H. [DB.] [uncertain] Milburn, Reporting.

Well, aaket-alive! Am I seeing things, or only dreaming them? The Feetcrs have at last gone and [palnied] [uncertain] ok that rambling old house. [Ive] [uncertain] lived [bere] [uncertain] fer some sixty years, and for forty years [Ive] [uncertain] been passing their old home place and wanted to see it painted, but didn't ever think Id live to see [itJonc,'] [uncertain] said a friendly neigh- b [bor] [uncertain] of the Fosters in a guod-natured [Tk] [uncertain] sort of jest ane ie The J. R. Foster home on North [toa Berenth] [uncertain] street looks glamorous once [agaln] [uncertain] with some ninety coats of white os paint which [ghsten] [uncertain] and sparkle in i the bright summer sunshine. The a [3 buge] [uncertain] 16-room rambling Foster home [vot bas] [uncertain] been the [seene] [uncertain] of many lavish and brilliant-social affairs in this city [5] [uncertain] for [somet] [uncertain] four generations. Mr and oa Mrs. J. [KR.] [uncertain] Foster are no longer there, ie but their indefatigable [apirit] [uncertain] of [hapae] [uncertain] pines, and for entertainment and [tae] [uncertain] ee good fellowship among friends, lives o on among many today. The family, [4] [uncertain] i those who carry [on™] [uncertain] in the home, a are restoring the old home place as 4 was originally, back [inmtiearly] [uncertain] 1900 period. The Foater home should by all rights be called the House of Hosptality," since it has certainly teen an Inn for Crockett In giving as much pleasure to both young and old as probably any other place in town. Mrs. A. S. Lee, who always had Sunday night suppers in [thie] [uncertain] home, said of Mr, and Mrs. Foster: Mr [4}] [uncertain] Foster [cerfainiy] [uncertain] lived-up to her old 1 belief when she said, it takes a heap I of living to make home." Both she and Nr. Foster loved people, and never gaiety and laughter throughout [ene]) [uncertain] i tired of having the house full [of},] [uncertain] group of their large family tu [another]) [uncertain] one." 4 t Some one asked Mr. Foster [once] [uncertain] why he [wouldnt] [uncertain] sell off the large) corner et on the southeast wide which if is m part of the huge front lawn, and 5 [i}] [uncertain] Mr. Foster ia reported to have [re-] tos] [uncertain] plied, 1 want a place for my children and their friends to run [und] [uncertain] play and, besides, I [dont] [uncertain] want any one to knock ad the south breeze off of me!" At 4 one time," [ratinued] [uncertain] Misa Marion Foster, this Jot made the only basket- ball court forme school, and children rushed here after [achoul] [uncertain] to play and i to [grt] [uncertain] their hands cither im the large) barrel of [picklea] [uncertain] mother [hadprepared, i=] [uncertain] or scoop over the big box of candy r and raisins always kept in the upper hall for their growing appetites. The yard was always full of laughing, happy children at play."

Misa Marion continued: The house t is a 1D00 period house, very typical of the time and age. It ie being restored to its original look, although the [unce] [uncertain] grey paint un the house and the red trim is giving to whites paint) and the red tom finish. At the time my father remodeled t the herne, or rather back in the 1900)

[J] [uncertain] period, my father was also in the vehicle business and known from [Texar- Ht] [uncertain] kana to the Gulf as John R. Foster, [P] [uncertain] the [bugry] [uncertain] man." In laying his plane t for [remudeling] [uncertain] his hume into a two), story 16-room house, with large verandas, he thus provided for his large growing [familys] [uncertain] needs, and his bug- gy house" was just a stones [throw]) [uncertain] from his home in fact, it faced what is [nuw] [uncertain] known as basinets district [Bf] [uncertain] on Sixth street, while his home faced cat on the residential section on what was originally known as [Church]) [uncertain] street. The original [aight] [uncertain] is on the [Dldj,] [uncertain] San Antonio Road," and was [marked},] [uncertain] by a hue oak tree which [wae] [uncertain] felled only recently by high winds here. Both my another and my father were born and reared in [Crockett,]) [uncertain] where they went to achoo) in the old academy under the [inatruccion] [uncertain] of [the,]) [uncertain] late Mr. Page and Mrs. A. There are now nine children, 12 grandchildren, 23 great grandchild: [ren] [uncertain] and one great great grandchild who cherish the old home [tuwn] [uncertain] and [att] [uncertain] gather around the large [pine,]) [uncertain] Christmas tree for their annual reunion on December 24. [Tradition] [uncertain] atli carries them back to this [unurual] [uncertain] gathering, where both young and old fulfil the true Christmas spirit with their [jey] [uncertain] and laughter way into the night, greeting Santa Claus in the wee hours of [Chrirtmas] [uncertain] day. [Stokings] [uncertain] are never hong until after the Christmas tree on Christmas Eve [atid cach] [uncertain] has received a gift from each member of the family." [(It] [uncertain] is quite [Interrating] [uncertain] to note that this je one place where it takes something larger than 6 stocking to hold [Christmas] gifte—the] [uncertain] Foster children used [pll-'] [uncertain]

Not only many [metobers] [uncertain] of [wut]} [uncertain] earlier day citizens will recall the jong-remembered hospitality of My and Mra Fuster in the Fuster [hontt.] [uncertain] but many of their friend of within the past ten years will real their gracious hospitality. Mr and [Mr.}] [uncertain] Foster were ever on hand to greet all comers and usher them inside, where some small token could te handed [cach] [uncertain] child from the big pine tree which was gaily trimmed and lit in the front parlor, Marion had seemingly been doing all the talking," Lut while we [Ls. tened{] [uncertain] we felt that the Foster girl, which host of people in Crockett, think of, only [ms-Miss] [uncertain] Alice, Min" Totaie, Miss [Alline'} [uncertain] and Mine [Marrarite"] [uncertain] were in on this bit of conversation, in spirit" anyway!

But back to Christmas at the [Fus-] [uncertain] i [tera,] [uncertain] and especially that Christmas tree. All jokes aside, the boys of the family, those who were delegated to, go and get the [Christmas] [uncertain] tree, had" to take down" the front door, every Christmas, to get the tree inside the, parlor.

Among the many looked for-, ward te planned festivities in keeping with the season was the annual) dinner and Christmas tree party [beld] [uncertain] few days after Christmas by Mr Foster honoring [ahe] [uncertain] famous H. T Club of which she was always president"

In [thiaaame] [uncertain] parlor today e still to be found the old time music benz," a gift of the Crockett Couner editor. W. W.
