More Than Satisfying.

The Courier editor, in writing of the last Sunday afternoon ride, failed to make mention of those beautiful Crepe Myrtles which line the roadside from Laredo to Crockett. Those flowering bushes, so pleasing to the eye, were planted by the ladies of Crockett and Sunday, members of a civic association, soon after the highway was constructed, and they seem to become more beautiful as time grows on. The Courier editor apologizes for neglecting to mention them before now.

PIONEERS GO TO MONTALBA SUNDAY

The Crockett Pioneers will travel to Montalba Sunday afternoon. The game will return a visit of the Montalba team.

The game Sunday afternoon was stopped by rain in the top of the fourth inning. Crockett was leading 4-2, but Montalba had scored once in the fourth and had runners on second and third with no outs. Harold Carpenter was pitching for Crockett and Holt for the visitors. The rain was only a shower, but left the new diamond a sticky mess.

BEALL CIRCLE HELD TUESDAY MEETING

The Beall circle of W.S.C. met Tuesday morning at 9:45 at Mrs. Hollis Beall's home. After light refreshments the group held the business meeting and the program. The devotional was given by Mrs. Joe Bennett, after which the singing of hymns followed. The program was presented by Mrs. Jack Barlow, Mrs. Albert Smith, Mrs. Carl B. Goulsby and Mrs. Ramon Callaway.

Sixteen members were present at the Tuesday morning's circle meeting.

SULLIVANS DROP CLOSE ONE TRINITY

The Sullivan Tigers of the Crockett Little League dropped a heart-breaker to Hunt Carroll's Trinity team Friday night on the Trinity diamond, 6 to 5, in seven innings. The regulation six innings found the teams in a 5-5 deadlock. The Tigers filled the bases, but could not score, then the home team won in the last half of the seventh.

The game was a hard one for Sullivan, Tiger hurler, to lose. He allowed only two hits, while personally accounting for three hits and four runs. The Knox Motor Company Indians dropped a non-run season to the Trinity B team.

Miss Amanda Chandler spent Sunday with Dr. and Mrs. J. N. Dean. Week-end visitors of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Dean were Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Dean. Week-end visitors of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Dean were Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Dean.

REDBUD GARDEN CLUB ENTERTAINED WITH [COKE. PARTY] [uncertain]

Il. B. Milburn, Commenting.

Mrs. J. L. Rogers was hostess to [membera] [uncertain] of the. Redbud Garden Clnb at a Coke party Friday morning, July 24. First of all, [Mre.] [uncertain] Rogers is an ardent Redbud Garden Club member and the grounds surrounding her home show the love and care she gives to flowers, Friday mornings Coke party was an open invitation to friends to come and enjoy the beauty of her flowers during summer weather. So [thia] [uncertain] Is an attempt to tell you more [about ker] [uncertain] lovely garden while telling you about the Coke party. The Coke party was held on the lawn under an unusually lovely Mimoss tree, the branches of this tree spreading out gracefully to cover practically an entire side of the lawn at the J. L. Rogers" home. Guests sat in a wide circle in talking of the pleasant happenings of the week. Naturally, with garden club members present, quite frequently conversation veered to exclamations of delight and admiration over discovering some unusual) shrub or ornamental plant growing around the doorstep and grounds of Mrs. [Rogers"] [uncertain] home. [The] [uncertain] sun was beaming down terrifically Friday morning, and just about everything, everywhere was drowned in heat but in [ehifftng] [uncertain] chare to the ever changing shadows under the Mimosa tree a bit of coolness was effectively created and ono actually forgot the terrifically hot weather of the morning in pleasant conversation with friends.

As you know this shifting of chairs to [coolng] [uncertain] shade in a garden is somewhat part of life outdoors in a garden and Friday these guests took it as a matter of course to move lawn [chalra] [uncertain] to keep out of the sun while enjoying the [conyrrantion] [uncertain] of friends during the mornings affair.

In [enjoyin$] [uncertain] the beauty of the flowers at [Mere.] [uncertain] Rogen" we might further make this comment. [Someone] [uncertain] has [sald] [uncertain] that: There is nothing more beautiful or spellbinding than the loud clear song of the mocking bird in a golden." And that if you take away the song of birds from a garden you would have a spot of beauty with the spirit removed."

We [fecl] [uncertain] sure that our native birds [Inhablt] [uncertain] that particular yard but this morning we were more conscious of another song" that is pretty [moch] [uncertain] a part of the wide-outdoors this time of the [ycar—and] [uncertain] that was the song of the Locust." You [know—] [uncertain]

That [little] [uncertain] voice that [crice] [uncertain] io a wilderness of grass and [hedgerowe—] [uncertain]

And spine a thread of song,
Weaving a golden fabric In the sun
Far and near, where field and pastures burn,

The Locust sings to summer, in the [blasing] [uncertain] heat of the sun!"

It may be a little thing" to think of, but the song of the Locust is really part of the [summnrc—fantacies] [uncertain] in a garden, too!

During the mornings affair the hostess invited her guests in-coors for refreshments. The dining table looked especially appealing with a summer arrangement of flowers [aml acceaso~] [uncertain] rhea for the table, The hostess wed and green as a color scheme with the cream colored zinnias and [groen] [uncertain] hydrangeas used [ffectively] [uncertain] on the table. Refreshments of Cohes, and.
