STATE-FEDERAL STREAM CONTROL

The Brazos River Authority is urging congress to pass a law voiding the recapture clause in the agreement under the Federal Power act which would permit the federal government to possess the Brazos River dam after 1968. The authority's attorney, John D. McCall of Dallas, says that the entire $45,000,000 building project on the middle and lower Brazos course will be blocked so long as the federal government holds an option to possess the big dam on the upper course.

He is right. Obviously, there could be no progress toward greater conservation and more efficient use of Brazos river waters until this clause is voided. This is true, that is, if the Brazos river project is to be run by the folks who live in the Brazos basin and want to use the Brazos river waters.

Congress ought to comply with this request of the Brazos River authority, which is receiving support from similar organizations in other states. And this movement by the Brazos River authority should call to the attention of congress the need of clarification as to present ownership and future options on a great deal of the river, channel property and surface water resources of this country.

Federal agencies have been overzealous in establishing federal jurisdiction over our water resources, especially in the western states. Control of the water resources in the western states will give the federal government life-and-death jurisdiction over many individuals, communities and cities. In some instances, it could vitally affect the economic development of entire states.

This does not mean that the federal government does not have an important role in the conservation of our waters. Most of our big streams are interstate, which makes them subject to overall federal control, according to any definition of the constitution. But the interests of states and individual localities, even on interstate streams, can best be protected by a large measure of state authority—Dallas News.

THE HORROR OF FAMINES

There is nothing new under the sun. History can be rightly called "a study of parallels" and particularly in regard to the present record-breaking drought.

As the prolonged dry spell has been, we can take refuge in the fact that disasters, either local or national, bring out the humanitarian instincts of the more fortunate. As a result, tragedy is averted through gifts, loans and other economic means.

But this was not always so. Recent studies show that man has sometimes had to resort to cannibalism in order to live through the famines following great droughts.

In a story released by the Associated Press recently, Arthur Edson reports on a study of age-old droughts made by Julius Allen of the Library of Congress. Edson quotes Allen as saying famines also have been the cause of wars, migrations, revolutions and Communism.

"India and China, near starvation level even when things are at their best, have been hardest hit," Edson writes. "The University of Nanking figures that China had had 1829 famines in the last 2000 years."

"Famines have been no respecter of geography. Some 650 famines have been recorded in Europe. In 936, in Scotland, people began to devour one another." And they are still at it, financially.

CATTLE PROSPECTS

Texas farmers and ranchmen, surveying their parched, brown earth and gaunt cattle, can very easily get a distorted picture of their future prospects. The situation is bad—but not hopeless.

Cattle owners must carefully consider their long-range plans. If you rush stock to the market which could be held, you may be cutting your income unnecessarily.

A larger part of our cattle backlog has been wiped out through quick marketing than many persons realize. Over $2 million more cattle and calves were slaughtered during the first six months of 1953 than at the same time last year. In many cases, even the foundation herds of cattlemen have been cut drastically or eliminated entirely. Therefore a lower price.

EMERGENCY LOANS UNDER NEW LEGISLATION

Explained by Secretary Benson.

Methods of making emergency livestock loans to farmers and cattlemen who need federal credit to buy feed and pay operating expenses were outlined today by Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson. The special loans were authorized by congress in new disaster credit legislation approved by President Eisenhower.

This credit will be extended only to established producers and feeders of cattle, sheep and goats, who have a reasonable chance of working out of their difficulties, but cannot obtain the funds they need from private or cooperative credit sources. Loans will not be made to enable a man to enter the livestock business or to carry on commercial feed lot operations.

Heaviest demand is expected from the drought-stricken southwest, but loans to cattlemen are not limited to the disaster area. Application blanks will be available from the Farmers' Home Administration offices within a few days. In areas of heaviest demand, banks, production credit associations, national farm loan associations, as well as the local offices of the FHA will have the blanks. All applications will be passed in by special livestock loan committees to be appointed by Secretary Benson.

WATER AT 20c

GALLON TO FILL

CROCKETT'S POOL

Robert M. Hayes in Dallas News

Crockett, Texas, July 30.—Water is plentiful in Crockett, but it will sell for 20c a gallon when the new swimming pool is opened here August 3.

That's how Junior Chamber of Commerce members hope to clear all indebtedness on a pool they describe as the "finest in east Texas."

When a farmer applies for a livestock loan, his creditors will not be asked to subordinate their claims to the government. However, they will be expected to give standing agreements for a long enough period to enable the farmer to have a reasonable chance of recovery.

The secretary will set up special loan committees to serve a whole area or a few counties, depending on the demand for this credit. Each committee will consist of at least three local persons having recognized knowledge of the livestock industry.

Most loan approvals will be handled by the local committees. However, whenever an applicant's total indebtedness would exceed $50,000, final approval will be by the secretary of agriculture.

Authority for making livestock loans extends for two years.

The legislation passed by congress also provides a supplemental source of emergency credit for established farmers—not limited to livestock operations. Areas designated by the president as major disaster areas. When the secretary of agriculture certifies that an area is a major disaster area, the federal government will extend credit to farmers who are unable to obtain credit from local sources to carry on farming operations, he can authorize loans to meet that need.

Large areas of Texas and Oklahoma and parts of Colorado, Kansas, New Mexico and Arkansas have recently been designated as major disaster areas.

Emergency loans to help farmers hit by economic disaster will be similar to the disaster loans now being made by the Farmers' Home Administration to farmers who have suffered production losses from natural disasters as drought, flood and windstorm. New loans will be made only during the period of the emergency. Lending will be handled by the Farmers' Home Administration offices. Credit will be available at rates of interest to be established by the secretary.

The new legislation also provides that in the future whatever expense the government bears in supplying feed and seed in disaster areas will be borne by a disaster loan revolving fund under the jurisdiction of the secretary of agriculture. In the past this expense had been carried by the president's emergency fund.

The other two new programs will also be financed out of the disaster revolving fund. About $16,000,000 is available at the present time. A request for additional funds is being made.

Most of the Jaycees have daytime jobs and had to work on the pool at night. Other civic clubs pitched in to help solve the labor problem.

Hains halted construction several times. Because of flooding the filter system had to be dug three times. But there was never a complaint about aching backs or blistered hands.

As of now the pool has cost less than $16,000, or about half of the original estimate for a professional Resley Building

The Jaycees say they anticipate the difficulty in raising the remainder of the money for a project that will add so much to the city's recreational facilities. They hope soon to be able to build a bath house which was not included in the current program.

Explained by Secretary Beneen.

Methods of making emergency live- stock loans to farmers and cattlemen who need federal credit to buy feed) and pay operating expenses were out- lined today Ly Secretary of [Agricul- ture] [uncertain] Extra Taft Benson. The special loans were [authorised] [uncertain] by [congressa in] jue [uncertain] disaster credit legislation ap- proved by President [Fisenhower.] [uncertain]

This credit will be extended only to established producers and feeders of seattle, sheep and goats, who have reasonable chance of working out of the difficulties, but cannot obtain the funds they need from private or cooperative credit sources. Loana will not be made to enable a man to go into the livestock business or to carry on commercial feed lot operations.

Heaviest demand is expected from the draught-strichen southwest, but loans to cattlemen ate not limited to the disaster area.

Application blanks will be available from the Farmers" Jlome [Adcmimetr-] [uncertain] en offices within a few days. In areas uf [heavicat] [uncertain] demand, Lanks, pro- [duction] [uncertain] credit associations, national farm loan associations, as well as the local offices of the FHA will have the blanks. All applications [wil!] [uncertain] be passed in by special livestock Joan [commiltters] [uncertain] to be [appointed] [uncertain] by [Seere-] [uncertain]

[The] [uncertain] loan funds can nut be used to refinance [debta] [uncertain] the farmers already owe.

When a farmer applies for a [live-] [uncertain] stock loan, his creditors will not be asked to subordinate their [claima] [uncertain] to the government. However, they will be expected to give standby agree: [menta] [uncertain] for a long enough period to inutile the farmer tu have a [reaponable] [uncertain] chance of recovery.

The secretary will set up special loan committees to serve a whole stale or a few counties, depending on the demand for this credit. Each committee will consist of at least three [lucal] [uncertain] persons having recognized knowledge of the livestock industry.

Most joan approvals wii be handled by the local committees. Reweves, whenever an applicants total indebtedness would exceed $50,900, fins approval will be by the secretary of agriculture.

Authority for making livestock jeans extends for two years.

The legislation passed by congress ale provides m supplemental source of emergency credit for [eatablished farmers—not] [uncertain] limited to livestock [opcraters—lin] [uncertain] areas [dealgnated] [uncertain] by the" president as major disaster areas. Miss Rogers also worked with the daily vacation Bible school in Andrews, and tells of quite an incident she was in while there. [On] [uncertain] the first night of the meeting in Andrews, the Bible school was being held in an educational building which was being completed. A terrific sand-starm and windstorm [wap] [uncertain] followed by downpour of rainstorm and some fifty Bible school students had assembled in the building. The directors decided that because of the storm they would postpone the meeting until the next night so dismissed the group. Just ac the group left the [bullding] [uncertain] it suddenly collapsed. Fortunately, no person was hurt, but Miss Rogers [Ie] [uncertain] still a bit terrified at the thought of what might [bave] [uncertain] been the outcome had the group stswd' inside the building a moment longer.
