JAYCEES BUILD A MIGHTY SWIMMING POOL

"Little drops of water make a mighty ocean."

H. B. Milburn, Commenting.

By the time this goes to press, the swimming pool will have had the pleasure of going to the pool for several weeks now.

In thinking of the swimming pool and the poem quoted above, somehow we can't help but give the poem a "modern day version" such as this:

"Little drops of water, little grains of sand, make a mighty swimming pool, and the pleasant land."

The Jaycees put water in the pool, took by inch for a while, when donations of money were brought in. And so, with rather what was more like a fast-food restaurant, and a hard dry-looking clay substance was unearthed when the Jaycees started the ground to make the mighty swimming pool, and then, of course, sand-went into the concrete in the building of the pool. And so, for the pleasant land, the ground was out there has certainly been a sort of pleasant place for happy, care-free children in search of a place to go swimming in the summertime. Therefore, this is our reason for the modern day version of the poem. Aren't we a little bit right?

According to Dan Julian Jr., president of the Jaycees, the first Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday that Crockett's swimming pool was open to the public there was an average of 800 swimmers a day. For the first Saturday and Sunday the average was 1,000 and 1,200 swimmers a day, respectively.

The Jaycees president turned and before the swimming pool was open to the public there was an average of 800 swimmers a day. For the first Saturday and Sunday the average was 1,000 and 1,200 swimmers a day, respectively.

LARGE [BASS] [uncertain] CROP NOTED

Auatn, Auguat [19—An] [uncertain] unusually good 1953 production of black base tn Texas" [watera] [uncertain] Is reported by the [chlef] [uncertain] aquatic [biologiat] [uncertain] of the Game ant Fish Commllaion.

He [sald] [uncertain] staff biologists throughout the [atate] [uncertain] observed a high hatching rate among the black [beacties.] [uncertain] This [upewing] [uncertain] ts expected to be reflected in [reguits] [uncertain] for the casting fraternity by next spring when the 1953 baby bass will have reached the minimum legal limit of seven inches.

The chief aquatic biologist added that bass fishing had been holding up in moat [parta] [uncertain] of the state even during the extreme heat. He said the black fighters probably are getting hungrier because feeding on the spring crop of forage fish becomes more difficult as the latter grow up and [are] [uncertain] more elusive.

Of the good spring bass hatch, he said conditions for [apawning] [uncertain] and sub- sequent growth into the fingerling class amply were favorable aa to waler temperature and food. With the states hatcheries augmenting this natural upsurge, the [chisf] [uncertain] aquatic biologist said the total black beauty population possibly [wil!] [uncertain] hit a net peak for Texas. He estimated the total black bass population at something in excuse of one [hun-] dred] [uncertain] million," based on more [than] [uncertain] three million surface acres of water.

That, he observed, would [amount] [uncertain] to roughly twelve black bass for each of Texas" approximately eight million [reaidenta—or] [uncertain] a pretty fair string of fish If the lot were to be divided up.

25TH ANNIVERSARY OF OLD RIP" [10] [uncertain] BE

Twenty-five years ago today, an [Eastland] [uncertain] date line was carried in the Associated Press and other news services, in [newspapers] [uncertain] from Maine to California, telling of the entombment, 31 years ago, of a horned toad in the corner stone of the old Eastland County Court House, [atated] [uncertain] H. J. Tanner, chamber of commerce manager.

The corner stone was to be opened on the 18th of February and people everywhere wondered what might be the fate of this horned toad. [East-] [uncertain] [uncertain] gained national publicity through the news reporting of Boyce House, former editor of the Eastland [Tele-] [uncertain] tram.

A large crowd was assembled on [he] [uncertain] square that afternoon when the corner stone was opened. Many present-day Eastland citizens remember the cry of amazement that was rolled when Judge Pritchard held aloft [the] [uncertain] dead body of the toad, and it [was] [uncertain] seen to flex a leg. This toad later acquired his name of Old [Rip.] [uncertain]

Tomorrow, on this the 25th anniversary, when you pass the court house, pause and give a fleeting thought to [Old] [uncertain] Rip" who by his [feat]. [uncertain]
